Shakeup In Tory Party Is Rumored

By NORMAN MacLEOD

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—(HUP)—Rumors spreading through the Canadian capital indicated today a possibility of immediate and important changes in Conservative party leadership, as senators and members of the House of Commons arrived for resumption of federal sessions. Prime Minister Mackenzie King returned to the capital but made no statement in connection with his week-end conference with President Roosevelt.

The prime minister indicated that any disclosures would be made in parliament. It is possible, perhaps today, but probably at some later date, that Mackenzie King was not at the station by Pier-point, Montreal, the American minister to Canada. The prime minister drove to his office and then back to the Canadian Club to hear Clement Attlee, the chief of the British Labor Party.

Meanwhile, informed Conservative Party sources say that a movement had been revived to draft Arthur Meighen, Conservative senate leader, as Tory leader in the commons.

Alberta Bond Refund Plan To Be Talked

Negotiations are underway to arrange a date for the resumption of the joint government committees, committee standing plans for the refunding of the provincial public debt of about $10,000,000. It was learned Monday. The date around which elections are taking place is about Nov. 15.

Non-Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer, who is committee chairman, is understood to be contacting his members with a view to establishing a satisfactory date at the middle of this month.

Social Credit members of the legislature at a recent caucus were on record as opposing any upward revision of interest rates on the debt.

At the present time the average rate on the debt is 2.45 per cent and 2.80 on the public debt as a whole, these figures being the rate on the half coupon value being paid under government policy.

It is understood that in any refunding operations, bondholders would seek to have a higher rate interest paid than that at present being offered by the government. In support of this position, it is reported, claim the government is in a position to pay higher rate.

The government, apart from the current resolution, taking a stand against a higher rate, is expected to submit to parliament a bill to amend the existing conditions, with high tax levels and increased Dominion government levies due to the war, that is an inopportune time to increase interest rates.

Tragedy Strikes Mine Village In Mountains

When tragedy struck the little mining town of Nordegg, Friday, taking 29 lives, to some it brought crushing burdens of grief, to others care and responsibility, while still others breathed thanks for fortunate deliverance. Shown above are: (1) a view of part of Brazeau Collieries, Ltd., where the fatal explosion occurred; (2) Nordegg's main street, with the hall used as an emergency morgue at extreme left; (3) John Shanks, mine manager since 1914, shown just after he entered the mine to supervise recovery of bodies, accompanied by (4) A. A. Miller, chief inspector of mines for Alberta, who is investigating; (5) Watson Jones, track layer, who was knocked down by the force of the explosion but escaped unhurt; (6) Mrs. John Goida, who suffered a double loss with the deaths of her husband and her father, George Halasa; (7) Hugh "Taffy" Williams, mine rescue superintendent, who toiled valiantly through gas and cave-ins to reach the entombed miners; and (8) Johnny Kaslo, for whom fortune intervened when he was changed to another section of the mine on the shift in which the explosion occurred. (For pictures of disaster victims see Pages 3 and 16.)

25 BODIES RECOVERED

Lieutenant-Governor At Miners' Funeral Service

By BOB SHAW
Edmonton Bulletin Staff Reporter
NORDEGG, Alta., Nov. 3.—In a specially prepared plot, at the foot of the mountainside on which this mining town is built, beneath the branches of a grove of pine trees, the remains of 29 men on Friday, were laid to rest this afternoon. The mountain cavern of Brazeau Collieries, Ltd. No. 3 mine, which was shattered by a gas-generated explosion on Friday morning, now has given up 25 of its dead but the bodies of P. Resnyk and Steve Romanow have been sent to Edmonton for burial, while that of Rudolph D'Amico, recovered only Sunday, will be buried on Tuesday.

Bodies of four more of the entombed miners were recovered from the mine shortly before noon Monday, but they were being kept at the mine until after the funeral services for the others were over. They were identified as F. Goida, John Volcko, Alex. Pastuchak and Kalman Crotter.

It was learned officially late Sunday that 29 men were killed in the mine as a result of the explosion. Four men who were once reported victims and now are stated safe are P. Merdi, T. Neher, T. Bartzack and L. Goll.

At the same time one new name has been added to the list, Pete Morol, 32-year-old Italian digger, whose body is not yet recovered.

The body of Nick Omelchuk was brought from the mine about 1 a.m. Sunday and that of D'Amico some time later. Since Saturday, also, one miner who had lain unidentified in the community hall for nearly two days was ascertained to Orders-in-Council establishing the price ceiling program of the government and expanding powers of the war-time prices and trade board to administer the ceiling were made known today by Finance Minister Layton.

Under the new Order-in-Council it will be "an offence on or after Nov. 17, to offer or sell or knowingly to buy or offer to buy any goods or services at prices higher than the lawful maximum."

As put forward by Prime Minister Mackenzie King when he announced the price-freezing program two weeks ago, this maximum was defined as the highest price at which a person or firm sold or supplied goods or services "at the same time and quality" during the period Sept. 15 to Oct. 11, 1941, both days inclusive.

"QUANTITY DISCOUNTS"

"Quantity discounts or other conditions of sale resulting in a lower price must be made available to the public in the same manner as the maximum price," Mr. Layton's statement, issued through the wartime prices and trade board, the supreme price policy authority over which he has jurisdiction.

"The maximum price for goods or services which may not have been sold or supplied during the 27-day base period is to be the same as the maximum price of goods or services sold or supplied during that period, at the same time and quality," the statement said.

In case of dispute, the trust of proving the existence, or extent of substantial similarity or distinction is placed on the seller or supplier.

Where a contract has been made prior to Sept. 15 or in the interval between Sept. 11 and Sept. 15, delivery of goods or services on or after the latter date at a price higher than the lawful maximum is prohibited.

Nazis Claiming Soviets Routed In Crimea Fight

By The Canadian Press

Germany claimed today the Russian army of the Crimea, split by an assault by land and air, was trying to leave the peninsula through the Black Sea ports of Sevastopol and Kerch.

The Hitler command pictured the Russian retreat as a near rout, claiming the loss of 200,000 men, 33,315 prisoners, 200 tanks, 218 cannon, several armored trains and other heavy equipment.

Far from the Crimea front, in the Donets basin to the north, the Russian capture of Kursk, on the railway running north from Kharkov through Orel and Tula to Moscow, had been captured. Kursk is 125 miles north of Kharkov.

RECAPTURED BY RUSS

Although the Russians readily acknowledged the siege of Moscow was becoming most grave, Red propaganda reported recapture of the northern section of Kalinin, 80 miles from the capital on its northern flank. They said that thousands of Germans were buried under the flaming debris of houses blasted by the defenders.

The Crimea fighting was a test for all arms of Russia's forces and the German high command of the Crimea would be a test for the German high command of the Crimea.

Soldier Killed By Hit-Run Car

Exclusive To The Edmonton Bulletin

LACOMBE, Nov. 3.—Pte. D. H. Smith, Ottawa, died in the Lacombe hospital shortly after 1 a.m. today as Royal Canadian Mounted Police pressed a province-wide search for the driver of a car which knocked him down and left him lying on the highway six miles north of here Saturday evening.

Smith was found by Harry Wright at 7 p.m. Saturday, lying on the east side of the road. He died before he could be first sighted the soldier's body, another car ran over it before he could be first sighted the soldier's body.

The truck driver, who was going from Ponoka to Lacombe, stopped after he had driven by W. Barber, who took the injured and unconscious man to the hospital.

Found by Dr. F. G. Stewart to have a brain injury, concussion, a broken leg and two broken arms, Smith failed to survive.

The accident is being investigated by Constable J. F. Steininger, of Red Deer, and it was learned that there was no broken glass on the highway or any other clue which would lead to arrest of the driver who hit the soldier.

Smith was in training at the Red Deer military camp.

R.A.F. Knocks Out Four Nazi Ships

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(CP)—British and Canadian airmen flying Hudson bombers "knocked out" four German ships last night off the Norwegian and Netherlands coasts to make a total of 24 vessels sunk or damaged in less than a week, and also attacked a fish factory on the Norwegian coast, the air ministry announced tonight.

Canadian airmen hit two of them, a large tanker and a smaller ship, and after the first land coast. A third described as a large supply ship was bombed off the British Islands by a pilot who "did not severely injure" in avoiding crashing into the ship's mast, the ministry news service said. A fourth was caught while anchored in a Norwegian fjord.

Last night's success brings the coastal command's total of ships sunk or damaged in less than a week to 24. The score may be near 20, but only the Nazis know the

The Nordegg Tragedy

The tragedy at Nordegg is one of the worst, though not actually the worst, in the history of coal mining in Alberta. But, terrible as it is, the loss of life might easily have been greater, for 400 men are employed in and around the mine in three shifts and 40 are reported to have died in the workings when the explosion took place. Exhaustive investigation will be of course made as to the cause of the blast, but it is the hopeful if melancholy chance that out of this may come suggestions by which mining can be made less hazardous.

At best the element of danger is never altogether absent in a coal mine, and the record of the industry here and elsewhere is marked by disasters. But as a result of these there have been built laws and regulations and mechanical contrivances designed to lessen the risk under which miners work and to effect the rescue of those entrapped. The betterment of these protective measures and devices must always be an object sought for when an accident occurs. The number of fatalities at Nordegg emphasizes the urgency of keeping this purpose in mind, and the circumstances are surveyed in hope of learning what exactly caused the explosion.

They Mustn't Listen

Vichy has sent out news that hereafter any French man or woman in the unoccupied part of the country will be in for "severe penalties" for listening to British or other named foreign broadcasts. This wipes out any difference between conditions prevailing in Vichy territory and that ruled directly by the gauleiters. Frenchmen have now little more liberty in one section of France than they have in the other, though the Nazis have not yet thought it safe to impose in the Vichy section the outrageous penalties they are applying in the rest of the country. The reason for this new order of suppression is self-evident. It is issued only because large and ever larger numbers of people in Vichy who have been listening to the messages from General de Gaulle and spokesmen of the countries which are fighting the tyrant that has imposed itself upon France. And it shows that as a result of these messages the cause of Free France is gaining ground everywhere in the unoccupied zone as in the occupied area. If this were not the case Berlin would not compel Petain to add to his already piled difficulties the duty of keeping watch and ward over every radio receiving set in his half-land.

The Serbs Set The Pace

Berlin reports that an all-night battle was killed in the two-battle with Axis forces. How many Fascist or Nazi soldiers were killed is not stated, but the constant reports of the deaths of the Serbs in the hands of the despots. From what is known of the Serbs it can be assumed with confidence that they are in good stead of themselves in the fighting and made plenty of gaps in the ranks of their adversaries. A report similar to that reported about the Serbs in the Balkans is that an active little war is going on in Yugoslavia, despite the impossibility of any help from the warring insurgents from abroad. Yugoslav authorities in London say the insurgent bands are 80,000 strong, and have played such havoc with the Italian occupation troops that German forces have had to be sent to reinforce these. Mussolini's "seven million bayonets" not being able to cope with the situation.

What Yugoslav now is, the other occupied countries are following the lead. The regular bands of organized resistance have revolted. When those display the same determination to fight for their freedom it will be possible to begin Allied expeditionary forces to the continent with some definite prospect of establishing new fronts of dependable resistance and to make these bases for aggressive action.

The Serbians and their fellow-countrymen are showing signs of being just peoples the way to liberty, for this can only come to them when they are ready to fight for it.

Broad Powers Of Adjustment
The administrative machinery to operate the wage-control policy is to consist of a National Wage Board and five regional boards. These bodies are to be made up of equal numbers of members representing employers and employees. The regional boards are to be concerned mainly with inspection, enforcement of regulations and the hearing of complaints in the first instance—this may be passed along to the national board.

The powers of these bodies are not confined to preventing wages going up. They may, in some circumstances cause wages to be increased. They have the responsibility as well as the authority to correct inequalities, to make readjustments on a basis of actual need, as well as of fairness between group and group. These powers, as enumerated by the federal Minister of Labor, make clear that the successful working of the control policy will rest with the boards; and that the detailed application of the plan the effects will be incomplete and the system not altogether foreseeable.

If there are companies which have not made wage increases or paid bonuses which would bring these in line with general wage rates in the industry, appeals can be made to the regional boards, which will have power to back-check and make bonus-paying retroactive.

The national board is to fix the dividing line between employees who are entitled to bonuses and executives who are not.

Employees who feel that their cost-of-living bonuses do not enable them to meet the increased living costs may bring the matter to the attention of the national board, which has authority to establish what is a fair and reasonable wage.

While the terms of the order-in-council apply directly only to building concerns with 10 or more employees and to other concerns with 50 or more employees, the board has power to extend its jurisdiction to the employees who fall below these numbers.

In detail the national board will define what classes of employees are entitled to bonuses and executives who are not.

Through these and other operations the administering bodies will have scope to establish balance between one wage group and another, to smooth the average level of wages and the cost of living. These duties will not be light. They involve the rights, and the welfare, of an estimated three million persons, scattered over the Dominion and dependent for a living on wages. And the control scheme is applied with judgment to the case of strikes or lock-outs in Canadian industry during wartime.

Herr Hitler's newspaper explains that the wholesale shootings and internments in Czechoslovakia were made necessary by the "unbearable" activity which the gesticapo had to cope with," and says the penalties were not severe in proportion to the resistance encountered. It also confirms the reports from other sources that rebellion is brewing in Czechoslovakia as in other countries. The Czechs find it advisable to explain, suggests that even among Germans there is resentment, and perhaps also dread, at the prospect of the new order being committed in their name.

Editor, Bulletin: Today the world is full of people who are yelling their heads off for help to Russia, and that an army be instantly dispatched for this purpose. Have they read what the Canadian overseas army? The big news of this week, of course, was the sinking on Thursday of the United States destroyer Reuben James by a German torpedo somewhere off the west coast of Ireland.

The significance of this event did not lie in the fact, but in the implication. And that the incident was a link in the chain that is slowly but inevitably drawing the United States into the European war.

At the announcement of the disaster, President Roosevelt declared that he would not let the sinking of the Reuben James be the last of the American policy with regard to Germany.

That, of course, is a figure of speech. No one can understand how this hostile and cold blooded attack on the American policy.

What Mr. Roosevelt probably meant was that he would not let the sinking of the Reuben James be the last of the American policy with regard to Germany.

President to deal adequately with labor agitators. It would stimulate American production which, so far, has not risen to meet the demand.

But Hitler, apparently, has no fear of the situation. He is desperate for Japanese assistance. The Japanese are pledged to enter the war, and should the United States declare war against either of the Axis powers, the Japanese would be in a position to break things wide open in the Pacific and practice of their agreement, to give Hitler immediate military aid.

President's Plan
President Roosevelt has this fact in mind when he declares that the naval strategy will not allow American policy towards Germany.

In short, he prefers to wage an undeclared war to give the Axis powers an excuse for jumping in on Russia's back.

In case we are tempted to criticize the American viewpoint, it is worth noting that the American viewpoint has again under the leadership of the British, and it has definitely swung again towards participation in the war.

Looking them over

by JACK KELLY

THERE are two days out of every year when the writing of this column involves itself in the opening of the season of the big game hunting. On those two days, my gun hunting pal, Jim Gilroy, the squire of Northville, comes to bat for me as guest columnist.

Today the squire takes over on the matter of big game. You can rely on his tips for the best spots for nearly 20 years of hunting in the Alberta big game country. I've straight from the campfire.

By J. M. GILROY

NORTHVILLE, Nov. 3.—The old game of hunters always remember the first of November, opening of the Alberta big game season, and on or about that date as the legal game season, the van-guard of tough guys like me to get their meat on the hoof will fly forth into the merry greenwood to put their woodcraft against the cunning instincts of the wondrous moose, the bounding buck and the crafty caribou.

The season runs from November 1 to December 13 in this year of grace, and payment of a paltry pair of bucks in the provincial government authorities entitles the purchaser of a hunting license, hereinafter to be known as the hunter, to lay out the buck, one wolf, moose and one caribou of the last-named either one or two may be killed.

Reason for this lack of civility shown by the regulations to caribou is because both male and female were horns, and big-game hunters are to delicate and modest to be expected to look for any further disturbing marks.

You need good gun, good clothes—especially footgear—good grub and plenty of it, while good companions are really the best part of the hunt and a good companion must have all the solid characteristics which clearly distinguish the essential points of difference between homo sapiens and a big game animal at anything from 30 to 300 yards, and one who doesn't keep uttering in a dazed voice, "I didn't know it was inside."

This Is Dangerous Ground

REGARDING guns, one steps on dangerous ground when seeking to give advice in this direction. And by gun is naturally meant a rifle. Many of our old-time hunters had battered old rifles with strictly hairy sights into the woods, and experience makes these fellows to get close enough to the game to kill, but they give all the credit to their guns.

However, when one bears in mind that the average kill on big game in this neck of the woods is made in fairly heavy cover, with most of the shots taken under a range of 100 yards, it is plain to the meaneast that a hunter who is going to bring home the bacon better take the super-whisper-designer high speed stuff.

The old 30-30 is always a good standby; so is the 200 British, 200 Savage, U.S. 30-06, and even the old bay-burning 43-90 is good for this bush hunting.

Factory sights are okay for this short range shooting at bulky targets, but a telescope sight is a godsend in the long range, and even when it is certain that it is a moose or a deer that one is shooting at. And of course, no one with a telescope sight is likely to blast another one.

Glasses are good insurance, too, besides being time and labor saving. They give a better view of the target than the eye alone, and a peep through the binoculars shows it to be a weatherbeaten old tamarack stump behind a screen of brush. And you can see that at half a mile with the glasses, without walking a step nearer.

The Tougher, The Better

A COMPASS and a small bell are absolute musts in the equipment: plenty of coats, at least two pairs of moccasins, two pairs of the toughest pants you can buy—cheaper grades will last just about one day among mugs—and a change of underwear.

About the grub-stuff, for the two weeks or so you are out in the woods, you needn't worry about the vitamin content, but lots of fat and protein are musts. A can of tomatoes, a can of beans and a few slices of bacon, plus plenty of bread, butter and tea, will give two hunters a mighty good supper, ready in five minutes after they come in tired and hungry.

Matches should be carried in a water-tight container at all times. Practically every sporting goods dealer has a supply of these on hand. A map of the hunting area helps, too, since you can plan your next day's hunt from the comfort of your armchair, and a ridge along a creek and the inevitable wild hay meadows, are the best places to hunt over.

Districts: Elk—Drayton Valley, Northville, Niton, Carrot Creek (These are jumping off places and also go into moose and deer country); Deer and moose—Stinson, Coal River, Pineau, Rocky Mountain, Whitecourt, Chalmers, all the Lesser Slave Lake country, the Lee & Bieby country.

Caribou—From Smith's through Lesser Slave Lake section. Phamous last words I should have been a scientist and cap like the regulations said, I guess.

Kenosha Cardinals Show Too Much Power For Bombers

KENOSHA, Wis., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Completing 17 of 42 passes attempted, Kenosha Cardinals defeated Winnipeg Blue Bombers 35-6 here Sunday.

Cardinals got on a scoring rampage in the first quarter and scored in each succeeding period. Bombers only came to the third period when Wayne Shirley went over, with Chas McNease adding the extra point.

Kenosha gained 360 yards with passed, Pete Higgins, a newcomer to Cardinals field, connecting with 10 of 19 passes. Art Blain and Al Christensen also started in aerial attack. Kenosha scored on the third play of the game after Leymann ran 40 yards and lateraled to Hollister who advanced another 45 to the 16-yard line.

The second score came a few minutes later when Shirley fumbled a pass in the end zone and Kenosha punted in the end zone and Dodge recovered.

The Cardinals smashed over for two touchdowns in the first quarter, one in each of the second and third periods, and two more in the final quarter. Bombers scored Kenosha's goal line in the third period.

The western Canada champions rolled up three of the six first downs in the second quarter and punted the ball on the five-yard strike. Shirley went over.

Winnipeg had several scoring chances in the final period but bogged down on the 17 and again on the 16-yard line.

Two thousand saw the game. Winnipeg played without backfield regulars, Fritz Jensen and Art Stevenson.

Kenosha rolled up 58 first downs and gained 643 yards to 132 yards for Bombers.

Detroit, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Detroit Red Wings twice came from behind Sunday night to national Hockey League opener before 11,432 spectators.

Three newcomers to "Hill" Dulton's Amerks—Mel Hill, Gus Marky and Rick Kiro—collected goals in the hard-checking battle, but Detroit overcame a two-goal deficit in the third period, then matched New York's, overcame the tie.

Abel, Don Grasse and Jack Stewart tallied for Detroit 11:42.

The Red Wings were resplendent in new uniforms bearing the "W" for "Wings" emblem of three dots and dash.

Hill scored at 3:38 of the second period with scoring time serving time and Marker tallied eight minutes later by stealing the puck at center ice and skating in on one on goalie Johnny Mowers while the Amerks were short handed.

Detroit got one back on Grasse's shot in the first minute of the third period and then scored at 4:20 when Grasse laid a pass on Abel's stick after a face-off near the net which he later flung it at goalie Earl Robertson.

In the overtime, Knott lifted the puck over Mowers' shoulder and face-off while the bewildered Red Wings stood by. But Detroit resumed the attack and Stewart slugged the puck into an open net after a scramble in front of Robertson.

Four City Hospitals Are Given Approval By College of Surgeons

Edmonton's four hospitals and the provincial Mental Institute at Oliver have been placed in the list of approved hospitals by the American College of Surgeons, according to a news dispatch released Monday in Boston, Mass., at the opening of the 24th Hospital Standardization Conference of the College.

I Saw Today

entering the Dominion Bank building.

The 1941 list of 2,875 approved hospitals in the United States, Canada and a few other countries represents more than three-fourths of the hospitals of 25 beds and over which are under survey by the College.

Approved hospitals in Edmonton are: the University, Royal Albert, General and Miscellaneous, along with the Oliver Institute. The first four are approved for training interns by the department of hospital services of the Canadian Medical Association.

Hospitals at many other Alberta points are also placed in the approved class.

Dr. Malcolm T. MacEachern, associate director of the college and in charge of hospital activities, stated that more than 10,000,000 patients were admitted to hospitals in the United States and Canada during the past year, yet the regulations for selective service reveal that hundreds of people are still suffering from preventable diseases.

Unemployment Will Be Grave Wallace Warns

Canada must be prepared to cope with the employment situation that is bound to be grave after the war, Dr. R. C. Wallace, former president of the University of Alberta, said Monday.

Dr. Wallace arrived here in the capacity of chairman of a special committee of the United Church of Canada to study the educational status of the church's theological colleges. St. Stephen's college is a branch of the church college system here.

Dr. Wallace is now principal of Queen's university, Kingston, Ont., a position he accepted in 1936. Prior to that time he was president of the University of Alberta for eight years.

Dr. Wallace has acted on several committees in the east in connection with war problems and his general impression has been that there is growing evidence on all sides in all freedom loving countries of the vital need of planning for proper rehabilitation after the war.

FURTHER TRAINING

The department of pensions and national health, through the minister, Hon. Ian MacKenzie, has issued an order-in-council that provides maintenance allowance for returned men who wish to carry on further educational training. Dr. Wallace said.

This is a vital and important step in the right direction, he said, and will go a long way toward easing the employment situation after the war. The order provides that 80 weekly he allowed single men and 413 weekly married men who wish to pursue a training course. This training includes university education as well.

In that case the tuition fees will be paid. Dr. Wallace expressed the hope that a considerable industrial population from England would eventually come to Canada, however, is only a hope as labor conditions in Canada would have to improve before these men would sacrifice better home conditions in England to come here.

The great influx of men due to demobilization and to re-mobilization of factories after the war, is bound to create a serious employment problem, he said. Canada and other countries realize it for now.

Dr. Wallace said that the government will spend two days here studying the educational status of St. Stephen's college. He is visiting many centres across the province in connection with recommending to the special committee of the college.

On Monday afternoon he will meet the board of the Pacific club. In the evening he will meet the board of St. Stephen's college. Dr. A. S. Tuttle, moderator of the United Church in Canada, will be in charge of the college.

At 6:30 p.m. Tuesday evening Dr. Wallace will be guest of the Queen's Alumni at a dinner in the Corona hotel.

Dr. Wallace will leave for Vancouver on Wednesday.

Two Injured In Accidents At Week-End

Two persons were slightly hurt and two others had narrow escapes from injury in accidents on city streets over the week-end.

Mrs. C. Anderson, 63, of 1542 38 street, received a slight cut on the right side of the head, which was caused by a doctor after an accident at 80 street and 123 avenue at 10:30 p.m. Saturday.

Police reports stated that Nick Stefaniuk, of 12916 87 street, was driving south on 88 street when Mrs. Anderson started to cross the street from east to west. The car driver said he blew his horn and the woman paused momentarily and then continued. She walked into the right rear side of the car and was knocked down.

After having a slight wound in the head dressed by a doctor, Mrs. Anderson went to her home.

COLLISION

Ray Thompson, 13118 68 street, suffered a bruised forehead in a collision between two autos on 118 avenue between 56 and 58A streets at 12:15 a.m. Sunday.

According to the police report Miss Thompson was a passenger in a car operated by Emmanuel B. Manning of 12040 108 street that was going west on 118 avenue. The car was in the left lane to avoid a parked car and collided with a car driven by John A. Gray of 11731 80 street. Three of the Manning car escaped without injury and Miss Thompson's injury was not sufficiently serious to necessitate her removal to hospital.

Carl Dargie reported he was operating a taxi south on 97 street and when in front of 1064 97 street, he struck Albert Pepper, 3, of the Lincoln Apts., who ran out from behind a street car that had stopped.

THE QUESTION

What do you think of the decision of the British government to suspend usually impressive colorful ceremonies at the Centenary in Whitehall and the trend in this country to modify Remembrance Day pageantry for the duration of this war?

THE ANSWER

THOMAS ALFRED, businessman: I think there is much merit to the idea. In England there would be an interruption of activities on behalf of this war and say large congregations of people, such as would be seen around the Centenary, might get caught in an air raid. In this country, while I favor some observance, I think we can well dispense with the usual held.

CHARLIE MANNON, clerk: While to me will overlook remembering the gallant men of the Great War, I think under the present circumstances curtailing of ceremony on Remembrance Day is justified while the war is in progress. There is more excuse for curtailing in Britain than over here, but I think we can do our duty by the gallant dead of the war by a greater intensification of this war's effort.

FRANK BRADSHAW, student: I would like to see widespread observance in this country. In Britain I think there is every justification for curtailing of the observance. Sounding of sirens for the two-minute silence might be construed as an aid toward winning and many persons might be injured.

F. O. A. M. Davidson and F. J. J. Davidson of the R.C.A.F. recruiting centre here left the City of Edmonton on a recruiting tour of the Grande Prairie district. They are expected to be away for about two weeks.

Gasoline Thieves Escape Trap Hotly Pursued By Constables

Breaking clear of a trap laid by police officers, a pair of gasoline thieves escaped capture in the northeast part of the city at 1:30 a.m. Sunday.

Constables Lyttle and Hillard, responding to a telephone call, went to the home of H. S. Seale at 1132 34 street, where they were told gasoline was being stolen from the tank of a parked car.

The officers held in Mr. Seale's house for minutes while a half-ton truck came from the north and parked three blocks south of the house. One man approached the parked car and picked up a can of gasoline that was on the ground nearby. His companion remained with the truck.

Const. Hillard gave chase to the man with the can. The thief dropped the can and ran. The chase was long and dogged.

Const. Hillard pursued his quarry down 24 street to 114 avenue, east on 114 avenue to 28 street, then in two more parked cars over two blocks and two men were taken into custody.

Const. Lyttle had even worse luck. The man with the truck drove away.

Police Seek Two Drivers

City police traffic officers and other members of the department are probing the movements of a car that figured in two accidents here over the week-end with the driver failing to stop in both cases.

Police are tracing the drivers through the license plates, however. James Smith, 3823 131 avenue, Beverly, reported his car was parked on the east side of 58 street at 11:30 a.m. Sunday when a car bearing Alberta license 38-201, going north, collided with the right side of his car and then swerved out of control into a vacant lot, carrying away a section of fence.

Smith said there was a soldier at the wheel, who with a soldier companion, got out of the car and fled. Police later towed the car to Edmonton Motors. It was damaged.

Clarence Harpe, St. Albert, reported that he was driving north on 97 street at 104 avenue at 12:10 a.m. Sunday when a car bearing license 38-211 struck his machine in the rear and then sped off without stopping.

Police are continuing the investigation.

Former Edmonton resident, Mrs. Rose Hartford, 68, died recently at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. J. Westwood, at Roblin, Man., according to word received in St. Albert. Mrs. Hartford lived in the city following the death of her husband in 1918.

Dorothy Dix Says:

A disgruntled woman says: "I wonder if it is good business as well as her married duty for a wife to make her husband happy. No one will deny that contented husbands, like contented wives, provide the most butter fat for the family. And, certainly nothing goes up a man's ambition so much and makes him go out and get it as feeling that the little woman desires a new necklace and such like for making life so pleasant for him."

"But why isn't it good policy for husbands to use the same technique in dealing with their wives? Why isn't what is done for the husband also done for the wife? Why don't men realize that the most profitable investment they can possibly make is to spend a little time and thought and effort in making their wives happy, and keeping them so that they married them instead of wondering what on earth made them do it?"

"They don't, you know. Here and there is a husband who makes a genuine effort to make his wife happy, but the great majority of men seem to think that all a woman needs to keep her singing praises of joy is just to possess a new ring, and that being married to them is all the plenty that any reasonable female could ever wish to attend."

"Probably men don't realize it themselves, but down at the bottom of their hearts is the conviction that when a man supports his wife he has done his full duty by her, and that he is entitled upon to throw in any entertainment or amusement, or do anything about pleasing the glimmer-bred of domestic life."

"And that is where Friend Husband makes a mistake and shows his lack of knowledge of how to work a wife. For the sex that does on whipped cream and mayonnaise and macadamia nuts and turns its nose up at corned beef and cabbage never loves a man for his virtues, but falls for his charms."

"No woman thrills over her husband paying the butcher bill, or knowing that he considers her a good woman, but any husband who makes his wife's brain sing for joy by bringing her a bunch of violets because they are the color of her eyes, or telling her

Your Figure, Madame! Your Baby And Mine

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Height being the long and short of weight, the short, stocky girl has her troubles keeping slim. It's this way: She not only has a small surface area to accompany with her weight, but stocky group if you are less than five feet three inches and weigh more than 137 pounds. And the smartest thing you could do is to change your food habits.

Now what has happened is that the young child who steals from lack of experience, has no idea how society feels about an accumulation of the property of another. He has no idea how he can be a parasite, feed toward money, grabbing a few pennies from the living-room table. In fact, if the candy were intended for company, the mother might make as great a fuss over it.

But AFTER he has taken the penny, the child discovers by our attitude and our tone of voice that he is doing a different. Money spells power and candy does not.

Another aspect has been of 5 has always had everything he wanted. He has been given money for his candy and candy and there he has the more he wants. "He doesn't appreciate it, for at times he has asked as much as fifteen or twenty cents a day, counting what we and others give him. I tried to cut down on this and he took pennies from my bank. I hid it but it worries me that if it were around he would take them. How can I get him out of this spending habit?"

Your initial mistake was to give him such large sums whenever he asked for them. You have made an error in judgment to him and you have made money seem valuable by the careless way in which you have allowed him to handle it. A child of 5 has no business with such large sums, because it is not money will be for trifles and so the sums he spends should be trifles.

You were right to put temptation out of his way as he is too young to resist it, especially with spending. He should have a fixed allowance every Saturday of five pennies and not one cent more until the next Saturday.

In this way he will understand the limitations of his allowance and after a few wild ories will know better how to deal with it. If other persons give him money this should go in a penny bank and not be spent along with the allowance. The fixed sum is to be an education in how to earn and cannot be done with certain sums and the allowance should increase only as the child grows and shows improvement in the wise use of the sum he is given.

Your jealousy, "Allowance for Children," goes into this in greater detail and it may be had by sending a three-cent stamp, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Myrtle Meyer Eldred, in care of this newspaper.

Minute Make-Ups

These are the facts and you can't help to stay lean on them. As their classification suggests, they are fattening. They contribute to the non-fat as many calories as protein or carbohydrate. You can't afford the high calorie foods that do not supply vitamins, minerals or protein.

Since you must get an abundance of these protective elements, you are much more apt to feel fit than you would on a ham-and-egg menu. That keeps you from feeling that cutting down on your meals is a hardship.

Exercise enters into your new scheme of living. As a rule, you should avoid strenuous activity that gives you an appetite you can't cope with. But you certainly need a half-hour that will trim the waist, tone the stomach muscles and slim your hips. A very moderate exercise can embody all these exercises, such as your regular housework and some sort of a vigorous figure.

Volunteer British Paratroops Undergo Rigorous Training For Their Skilled, Daring Work

ON THE WAY UP

British paratroops undergoing training at an undisclosed R.A.F. station sit cramped in a plane as they go aloft for a jump. They are prepared for their skilled and daring work by instructors from both the army and air force. They are volunteers. If Britain tries to invade the continent these men most likely would be dropped behind enemy lines to sever communications.

ON THE WAY DOWN

It's raining British paratroops who are undergoing training at an undisclosed R.A.F. station for the day, possibly, when the British will try an invasion of their own against Germany or German-held territory.

"BEHIND THE ENEMY LINE"

Divested of their 'chutes, British paratroops are off to "attack a position" during their training at an undisclosed R.A.F. station.

Aid From The South For Russia

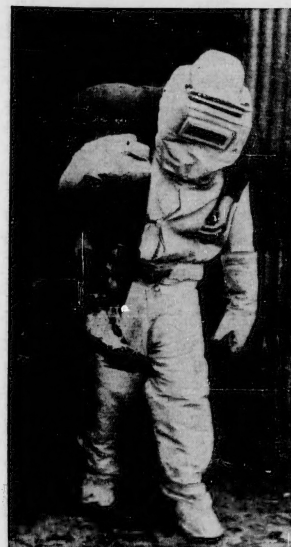

Threatened in the south by swift German advances, Russia also looks there for aid in the form of troops and supplies. British troop aid may come soon if Rostov falls, while transport facilities must be expanded before flow of supplies via Iran can reach a peak.

Hitler Goes Into Rubbish Can

Two students of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan demonstrate what's going to happen to Hitler when they and their fellows have completed their job. Prankster going into the can is Frank "Knobby" Clark of England and student applying the lid is Michael Lebas of the Argentine. The act was performed at Uplands airport, Ottawa.

No "man from Mars," asbestos-clad member of England's newly-trained air raid and fire-fighting corps practices carrying "victim" from "fire."

Not an uncommon sight, nowadays due to the shortage of cigarettes in Britain is a girl smoking a pipe. Miss McArthur, of the Ministry of Supply, finds a pipe comforting in stress of war duties.

Canadians Heed The Cry For Weapons And More Weapons

After two years of warfare, the democracies are still amazed at the powerful reserve of war materials which Hitler has stored up in past years. Germans have sacrificed butter for guns over a long period. Canadians will sacrifice a great deal more than at present before the production of weapons here begins to match the German effort. Canadians' realization of this situation is reported to be reflected in the ever-rising enthusiasm behind the many war weapons objectives now being fought from coast to coast. Six centres are out to supply one or more tanks per month like those shown at top left; ten locations are pledging themselves to provide money for bombers each month; nineteen places have fighter planes (bottom left) as objectives; while twenty-seven cities and towns are striving to produce the money for naval guns as depicted in the photo at the right.

Fire Women Train At London Hospital

Climbing a ladder with a hose are the members of one of several teams of girls in training as firewomen at the Royal Northern Hospital in Holloway, London. The girls who are preparing to be hospital housekeepers, spend their spare time practicing such things as roof nad ladder-climbing and handling of hoses so that when they leave to take up posts at other hospitals they are competent to organize and train their own teams of firewomen.

Daughters Who Dare

By Rob Eden

JUNE RANDOLPH has been forbidden by her father to see her brother who recently was released from prison after serving time for setting a bad check. June, however, is eager to help him. She sent him word to get out of town. It is the idea of June's father to see the man, then had her return for them, hoping she and June can bring the man home. June's father, ROY RANDOLPH, who shares her father's opinion of June's brother, is a man of many words. DOLLY RANDOLPH, who shares her father's opinion of June's brother, is a man of many words. DOLLY RANDOLPH, who shares her father's opinion of June's brother, is a man of many words.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE
DOLLY RANDOLPH was surprised as she was told that she would be when she went up to her apartment and rang the bell. "Anything new?" Dolly asked. "Nothing, except I've been thrown out of the house—now I know how Eddie felt when it happened to him." "Now I'm looking for a place to stay," the girl said. "You've found it?" Dolly exclaimed. "Right here with me." "Now would she listen to June's protests, but she wouldn't. She asked the taxi driver to bring up Miss Randolph's baggage. "But you haven't come home to have me here," June argued. "You're just your sister and—"

"Nonsense. I've got a husband down here in the living room. If you don't mind sleeping on that sofa, you can stay here. You're just your sister and—"

"Have you seen Eddie?" his sister asked. "No, and I'm worried. Two men from the district attorney's office were here asking for him. What in the world can they want with him? And what happened to him? It's not like him not to call me at least once a day." "June didn't know, either, what had happened to Eddie," his sister said. "May I use your phone?" she asked.

"Of course, it's as much your phone as mine now. For you're going to live here."

It was a tempting offer. For June knew that she would only get Dolly into difficulties, too, if she lived with her. However, she had a call to make first—the argument about playing could wait. She dialed Roy's office number. "He's in conference right now," Miss Randolph, his secretary said. "Shall I have him call you?" "Yes, if you please. Just as soon as he's free." She gave the girl Dolly's number. Dolly had a dancing lesson for half an hour, and June set down to wait for Roy's call. Glancing frequently at her watch, she at last phoned him again. "Hello, Miss Randolph," the secretary said, and June thought she noted a shade of triumph in the voice. "Mr. Randolph had to leave the office. I'll remind him again to call you when he returns."

"I wonder," June mused as she hung up the phone. She was standing at the window looking out into the street when the telephone rang. It came so suddenly she was startled. "Hello," she said, eagerly. She had been wrong about Roy, after all she thought.

MRS. BARKER called the answer. "This is Mrs. Barker, Miss Randolph. How did you know I was here and how do you know I'm on the phone?" she demanded. "You'd be surprised what I know," he chuckled, "and I'm proud of remembering yours. I'd know yours any place."

"Well, what do you want?" "The Thistle-Air truck is opening tomorrow," the daughter said, called to ask you to go with me. I've got a box."

"Thank you, no. I have another engagement." "Then consider it broken. Your date with me?" "But Mr. Barker, I scarcely know you."

"That's what I was thinking. That's why I gave you a buzz. We can get acquainted at the races." "Oh, yes, you can. I don't mind. I'll call for you at one o'clock tomorrow, and you'll be ready. I don't like to miss the first race. There was no doubt the meet in his voice now. His bantering tone was entirely gone.

"What has happened to my brother?" she countered. "He's OK. I don't know anything about it. But I'm quite sure he's OK." "How do you know he's all right? If you don't know anything about him?" "You ask entirely too many questions, sister. I'm telling you he's OK. Nothing happened to him. I know that much."

"Don't tell me where he is!" "Forget him. He's all right. I said. And in the meantime don't forget our date. One o'clock tomorrow. Understand?" "If you don't tell me where my brother is, I'll hang up right now. June threatened. "How do you know so much and yet so little?" "I know a lot of things," Mugsy answered. "For instance, I know that you're no longer living at Kensington."

"What? Who told you that?" "I've got my ways of learning things that interest me." "But who could have told you?" Mugsy chose to ignore this question. He merely repeated that he expected to pick her up the following afternoon and hang her up from her sister a minute later.

"Get your call through," she asked, pleasantly. June put down the phone, and she said, "You can't play with you here, Dolly, really I can't. It's too dangerous—for you."

"Nonsense. Come on, let's unpack your things."
